Alpharetta Recognized as a Top Culinary Town in the South

ALPHARETTA, GA – (October 22, 2024) – The Alpharetta Convention and Visitors Bureau (CVB) is excited to announce that Alpharetta, Georgia, has been named one of the Top Culinary Towns in the South for 2024 by The Local Palate. Alpharetta proudly claimed a top three spot, as voted by the publication and its readership.

This prestigious recognition highlights Alpharetta’s dynamic culinary scene, which is known for its innovative chefs, diverse dining experiences, and vibrant food culture. From locally sourced ingredients to globally inspired menus at 200+ eateries, Alpharetta’s culinary landscape offers something for every palate. Not only does this recognition set Alpharetta ahead as one of the top foodie destinations in the South, but Alpharetta was also the only community from the state of Georgia to be included in the voting process!

“We are thrilled to be recognized as one of the top culinary destinations,” said Janet Rodgers, president and CEO of the Alpharetta Convention and Visitors Bureau. “This award reflects the passion and creativity of our local chefs, restaurateurs, and food artisans who make Alpharetta a remarkable dining destination. Whether traveling from across the country or visiting from a neighboring community, we invite culinary enthusiasts to visit our city and dine at one of our culinary hot spots.”

Highlights of Alpharetta's Culinary Scene:

- Diverse dining options: With 200+ dining options, many restaurants offer various menu options, from global cuisine to menus with locally sourced ingredients.
- Innovative chefs: Talented chefs continue to push culinary boundaries and create unique dining experiences for visitors and residents.
- Food festivals and events: Popular events like the Alpharetta Food Truck Alley and the annual Taste of Alpharetta celebrate the city’s tasty culinary activities.
